FUNERAL SERVICES ARE ARRANGED FOR HARTFORD SYMONDS

Victim of Typhoid Believed Contracted in Camp With Militia.

The funeral of Hartford L. Symonds, son of A. J. Symonds, who died at his father's residence at Arlington as a result of typhoid fever supposed to have been contracted while he was in camp with the National Guard at Harpers Ferry, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of his father. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Ceme-

Dr. H. Y. Corbett, the attending physician, says there is hardly any doubt that the young man contracted the fever at Harpers Ferry,

"Where he acquired it is purely a matter of deduction," said Dr. Corbett, "and I cannot be absolutely certain. This much is true: it takes the typhoid germ from three or four days to a fortnight to germinate: I was called to attend young Symonds a week after he had returned from Harpers Ferry, and the disease was well advanced. I am sure he did not get it around home, as, because of my position on the board, I would have known of any typhoid cases were they within a contagious distance. I know there were none. The logical deduction, therefore, is that he contracted it while on the camp."

MRS. LEVI WOODBURY.

Mrs. Levi Woodbury, wife of the president of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company and proprietor of the St. James Hotel, died this morning at 2 o'clock at the Woodburys' country home at Canobie Lake, N. H. About ten days ago Mrs. Woodbury suffered a stroke of paralysis and neve railled from it.

The funeral will be held at Canobie The funeral will be held at Canobie Lake Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and burial will take place there.

Mrs. Woodbury was within two months of her seventy-fifth birthday, and was a native of New Hampshire, but had resided in Washington since her marriage to Mr. Woodbury many years ago. Their Washington residence was il lowa circle.

Nearly two years ago she received a stroke of paralysis, but had almost entirely recovered. She was able to take daily drives in her automobile, and suffered little inconvenience except in her speech, until the second attack ten days ago.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU. ALEXANDRIA, VA., SEPT. 17. The seventh annual convention of the League of Virginia municipalities, which meets here today and tomorrow, was formally opened in the Young People's building today by Albert D. Brockett, of this city, president of the league. After an invocation by the Rev. Harry Canter, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church, addresses of welcome were delivered by Frank F. Marbury, president of the board of aldermen, and Carroll Pierce, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce. The response was made by George Ainslie, mayor of Richmond. The convention then proceeded regular business. After the roll call of the cities, it was shown that about one hundred delegates were present, representing all the important towns in the State. This was followed by the annual report of L. C. Brinson, of Portsmouth. secretary-treasurer of the organization. The objects of the league, which were outlined by the president in his address, are to promote the systematic collection of information relating to municipal affairs, to foster the exchange of suggestions of interest between municipalities; to propose, and as far as possible, influence, legislation necessary to proper municipal administration and growth, and to generally in terest the public in and advocate all ideas tending to bring municipalities of Virginia abreast of the best in the country country.

At 12:30 the convention adjourned for funcheon, which was given at Lee Camp Holl, where they were the guests of the chamber of commerce. Practically every city official was present, and participated in the "round table taiks" on municipal improvement, which were of interest. At its conclusion, the delegates were taken in special trains to the Arlington National Cemetery. This evening an illustrated lecture, entitled "City Planning and Civic Spirit," will be delivered in the Young People's building by John Nolen, of Cambridge, Mass.

The committee on resolutions presented the following, which was passed by an unanimous vote: "We, the members of the Progressive party of the Eighth. Congreszional district, heartily indorse the national and State platforms of the Progressive party; and in particular we approve the planks in the State platform calling for the abolishment of the fee rystem, and the bestowal of a larger measure of home rule on the countles." Guy H. Wells, of Laceyville, Pa., arived here today shortly after 11 o'clock and is making arrangements for the funeral of his father, Major Levi We'ls, who dropped dead yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock in his office at the Department of Agriculture. Nothing definite has yet been determined with regard to the funeral arrangements, but it is thought the body will be taken to Bradford county, Pa., for burial. Major Wells was eighty years old. and had spent the best years of his life as a dairy and pure food expert. He had for many years been head of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture, and previous to that was dairy and food comnissioner of Pennsylvania.

He was born in Laceyville, where he still maintains his home, though his works took him all over the country. When in Washington he always stopped at the Army and Navy Club. He arrived here Saturday from Philadelphia, and at his office yesterday seemed to be in the best of health until about noon, when he complained of being ill, as of something pressing against his chest. It is supposed he was suffering from acute indigestion as he had for many years been a sufferer from this trouble. He was ministered to by one of the laboratory physicians, but the attack recurred, and a little after 4 o'clock Major Wells fell over unconscious. An Major Wells fell over unconscious. An ambulance from Emergency Hospital was rushed to the place, but on arriving found Major Wells dead. In the room at the time he fell were Robert McAdam, Williams, and Pirtle, employes of the dairy division.

The body was taken to Gawier's undertaking establishment, where it will remain until the funeral.

Before going into dairy work Major Wells had attained considerable distinction in the civil war. He was in Sherman's army part of the time and after the war was rewarded by being breveted a major.

OCTOBER TERM OF EXPECTED TO REACH THE CIRCUIT COURT

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Sept. 17,-The When the public schools of the District open next week and an enrollment is officially taken, the cuestion of how much of a loss the new tuition charge law for non-residents pupils will cause will be accurately settled. Assistant Superintendent of Schools Thurston said today that he thought the normal increase would just about balance the loss due to students of Alexandria, and Prince George, and Montgomery counties, who will attend Virginia or Maryland schools this year instead of District institutions. Superintendent Davidson some days ago estimated the loss at about 800.

One thousand desks and seats are being installed today in the schools of Alexandria county by Superintendent W. T. Hodges, who purchased them of the Board of Education here at an auction of old furniture last week. The furniture is going into the schools of Fort Myer Heights, Clarendon, Ballston, Carne, and Saegmuller.

Formal notice of the Board of Education meeting tomorrow afternoon was sent out to members today.
